Tremendous demand, inadequate supply—Soaring prices—
those are the salient features that characterize the present Clothing Situation everywhere

....Yet we can assure every Curtis Brown customer who needs a new overcoat this season that this Live Store stands ready to supply him with one, and to sell it to him at a less price than the same coat would cost us at today's wholesale prices. We don't know of another store—anywhere—that's selling such good coats as low as we are. We don't base our prices on "replacement value" the way some do, but on the actual cost to us under contract we placed long before prices started on their latest upward swing. As we bought these garments, so are we selling them, and so shall we continue to sell them, no matter how high wholesale prices go.
